PUBLIC MEETING.

The public are well aware by this time that the citizens' mass meeting, long urged and expected, will take place to-morrow at 2 o'clock p. m. as more particularly set forth in the notice of the same in another column of this issue.

We have no doubt that this event will be one of the most memorable in the History of Hawaii. Every indication is that the meeting will be orderly, and peaceable, but determined.

It is due to ourselves and to those who are to come after and to the nation at large, that all should unite in making this meeting a power.

No merchant but can afford to close the doors of his place of business and himself lead his clerks and employees to the meeting. No merchant can afford to do otherwise. Every mechanic should, and we have no doubt will, be there, for it is this very class that are putting their shoulder to this movement.

All natives desirous of good government and feeling the need of it, will be most welcome.

This is equally true as to the Portuguese and in fact of all.

The times are ripe, the opportunity is once more in our hands, and with the miserable compromises of the past staring us in the face, let us not let this passing opportunity go by.

Let every man be on hand. Let business be suspended and the silence of the streets in business quarters be in itself a powerful advocate of the serious necessity of reform.

A RUN ON FIREARMS.

Several hundreds of rifles, with ammunition, came by the Australia yesterday, to several consignees. No obstacles to their delivery by the Custom House authorities were interposed. This morning the arms and ammunition were placed on sale, and for several hours a regular run was kept up on the deadly weapons at E. O. Hall & Son's, Mrs. Lack's, and Castle & Cooke's. By noon there was but little left of the entire shipment. Men of all nationalities, classes, conditions, and ages could be seen marching boldly off with the formidable implements in their hands or thrown across their shoulders. It is to be hoped that no use other than target practice, goat shooting, etc., will ever be found for these arms.

BARRICADING.

The palace gates have been barricaded to-day. Mechanics have been engaged on the work. This is a poor method of trying to stem popular feeling. Nobody wishes to do harm to anybody within the palace walls or to anybody else. The people have been aroused to a sense of the iniquitous wrongs that have been perpetrated on them, and they are rising in their majesty to demand their rights. Barricading of palace walls is no obstacle to their demands, and will not prevent them insisting upon their rights. Let no man be such a fool as to think that the people in this movement can be calmed or alarmed by such measures. The demands are reasonable, and they must be conceded.

RESIGNATION OF MINISTRY.

The resignation of the ministry alluded to by us yesterday as a rumor with a solid foundation, was definitely announced in this morning's issue of the Government organ as an accomplished fact. The Ministers are simply retaining their portfolios until their successors shall have been appointed. Gentlemen have been in conference with the King during the day respecting the formation of a new ministry. Up to the hour of going to press no Cabinet had been formed, so far as we could learn.

JUNIUS KAAE DISMISSED.

We are credibly informed that Junius Kaae has been dismissed from the office of Registrar of Conveyances. So far, so good. But this is enough. He must be brought to trial, and if found guilty of the charges preferred against him in the sworn affidavits recently published in the "Gazette," punished accordingly. Justice and common decency demand this, and can be propitiated by nothing less.

SAN FRANCISCO TO ENGLAND.

To one long accustomed to the quiet life that is to be found on an island plantation, the transformation to one of the busy marts of the world engenders a strange feeling, such indeed was my experience, from the time of my landing in San Francisco on a beautiful morning, the 20th April, to my departure on the afternoon of the 21st, the sight on landing was quite an animated one, the many friends of some of the Australia's passengers hurrying forward to look out for the expected ones, the rapid unloading of the baggage from the vessel's hold, the claiming of it, its examination by the Customs' officers and the varied phases of disembarkation were gone through in rapid succession and I was soon rapidly driven off to my hotel, the Brooklyn, where I had stayed at thirteen years before, on a former visit to San Francisco; after arranging for rooms, etc., and partaking of a good lunch I sallied out to see what I could in the short time at my disposal; my impressions of San Francisco thirteen years ago are rather indistinct at this time but they were sufficiently strong in my mind to enable me to judge what great changes had occurred in the interval, it has extended its boundaries in every possible direction, its buildings have improved in a wonderful way and can compare in size and architecture with those of any of its rivals in the new or the old world; the stores are very fine and attractive in finish, and show of goods in the windows, and altogether it is a wonderful city with very many attractive features to a visitor. Leaving San Francisco at 3 o'clock on the 21st, by the Railway Co.'s Oakland boat we were rapidly carried over to the Railway depot on the other side, (one feature of this part of the journey being the large number of water fowl of many species to be seen in the bay), and at 3:30 p. m. precisely, we left Oakland on our long eastward journey, during the afternoon of this day we passed through a beautiful country, highly cultivated and in every way charming to the eye, the district being the Sacramento Valley, we were passing through this until darkness hid all outside objects from view. Our train was a long and a crowded one, all seats appeared to be taken, I noticed one great improvement in the second class cars, and this in having arrangements for the sleeping accommodation of the occupants, there being upper and lower berths similarly arranged to the Pullman cars, only the sleepers must supply their own mattresses, pillows and blankets, but is a great improvement on the old system in which Pullman's were the only sleeping cars and it is a boon which the traveling public no doubt highly appreciate; my own berths were in a Pullman car and I cannot speak too highly of these specimens of traveling luxury, both by day and night the comfort is the best possible; I was fortunate enough to secure places in one of recent construction, with high backs, making the seats much more comfortable. Such comforts make traveling a luxury.

On awakening on the morning of the 22nd, we were passing down the eastern side of the Sierra Nevada, having traveled up to and passed the summit during the night, we were now amongst the snow, notice we had of this during the night by the lowered temperature but the cold was not intense, the view on either side was very pretty, the woods, hills and dales with rivulets of running water and snow clad hills and trees having a pretty and interesting effect. After leaving the Sierra our journey was mostly through an uninteresting country, an alkali plain on either side of us, stretching away miles upon miles to the horizon, a trackless desert, while in the distance was seen the Humboldt range of mountains covered with a mantle of snow, the view a desolate one right on until approaching Ogden when the country began to look a little more interesting, this was on the morning of the 23rd, and we traveled from early morning within a short distance of Salt Lake arriving at Ogden at 9:10, where we had a stay of an hour and fifty minutes until the second portion of our train arrived, it having been divided during the early part of the journey, owing to its extreme length. Our long stay here enabled us to get a good meal in comfort, the time usually allowed at the dining places being too short to allow of the meal being taken in comfort, I must say in this connection that the meals provided are generally very good, and great improvement on what I experienced on my first overland journey; leaving here at 11 a. m. we passed through a more interesting country for many hours; passed into a snow storm and through it, with large quantities of snow to be seen as far as the eye could reach. During this day, the 24th, we passed through a large tract of land belonging to an English syndicate, it took hours to pass through, so you may imagine its large extent, it is used for the purpose of stock-raising. This owning of large tracts of land in America by aliens is to be put a stop to, a law is, or about to be passed which prevents aliens owning land, they must become citizens before obtaining the title deeds; to-day we entered the State of Nebraska, this is a highly farmed State and the difference in aspect could be quickly discerned, in the Territory of Wyoming which we had just left, far as the eye could gaze, nothing to be seen but a treeless desert, but in Nebraska we are constantly passing pretty homesteads, with buggies very often to be seen driving along the roads and a homelike appearance over the scene, pleasing to the eye. Arrived at Omaha early on the morning of the 25th, this is an important place and a supply depot of the Union Pacific Railroad, it has increased very much in size of late years and now has 75,000 inhabitants, we stayed here but a short time, passing over the Missouri to Council Bluffs, where we had to change cars. My route from here was by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway and we left punctually at 9:15 a. m., a dining car was attached to this train and from here to Chicago which we reached early on the morning of the 26th, we had meals very comfortably, the train we passed through from here was a well-furnished one and pleasing to the outer walls of civilization and rapidly nearing the dense centers of population, we were also in a prohibition State, Iowa, nothing stronger than tea or coffee being allowed, and let me here say that in my humble opinion if the same law was in effect in many other parts of the world it would be for the good of those residing there; we attained a high rate of speed on this road, the track is well laid and traveling I think faster than at any other previous part of our journey. We arrived in Chicago at 6:30 on the morning of the 26th, where we again changed trains and depot, being carried over by omnibus to the depot of the Michigan Central Railroad. This depot is the most miserable I met with on my journey and the lunch rooms worse still. This was a surprise to me for it is not in keeping with the size and business of the city. I had no time for a look at the city of Chicago, as after a short detention we once more sped on our eastward course. A short distance from Chicago, on this road, are the works of the Pullman Car Co.'s workshops and the houses of the employees, stores, etc., all owned by the P. C. Co. No saloon is allowed on the place but this good arrangement is spoiled by the small town of Kensington, which consists almost wholly of saloons erected after the former place was built. The Pullman Works, etc., are called Pullman town, and they do form a town and of no mean dimensions. The business must be a colossal one to support such a place. Speeding rapidly along through a very interesting country we arrived at Detroit early in the evening, the electric lights hung on long poles with which this city is lighted, have a strange appearance to an unused eye. I learnt that the cost is less than that of gas. Our train was here carried over a branch of Lake Erie, and on this night traveled partly on Canadian territory. Passing Niagara Falls in the night and so missing the view. We arrived at Rochester early on the morning of the 27th, and at Syracuse at 9:15, where we enjoyed a good breakfast and changed cars. One peculiar feature I noticed on leaving here, we passed through the streets of the town, our train passing along the public roadway. The journey from here to New York which we reached at 7 p. m., was very interesting, passing, as we did, along the banks of the beautiful Hudson, our view in many places was splendid, on approaching New York many beautiful residences are scattered on the slope looking on the river; the scene is a
